

"Speak up!"

the fine art of sharing and presenting

ctfeds.org/speakup

put out nametags, w/pronouns

Activity ✨

Why are you here today?

Write on a sticky note

Activity ✨

Introduce yourself to someone new

Share why you are here today

Ohai! 🖐️

Speaking and workshop history

Worst speaking mistake(s)

Doing this to (hopefully) help you get started

Agenda

Put up A4s

Trying something a bit

different: modular workshop

Section:

Debunking myths

short presentation

Things that you think stop you from speaking, but maybe don't have to

Myth

“I’d be a terrible speaker”

Debunk 🙌

You don't need to be perfect

Just "good enough".

Start small, Practice a lot. You can learn, grow.

Everyone gets nervous. It's because you care.

Myth

“I’m not an expert”

Debunk 🙋

You don't need to be to succeed

You don't need to be a super-nerd.
Making mistakes is part of learning, and being a dev.

Your point of view, way of seeing things, is unique. We need diverse viewpoints.

Your background, education, experience.

Myth 🙅

“But I’m not ready yet!”

Even after all that...

Debunk 🙋

You don't have to be

Submit a proposal

If it's accepted, work on the talk.

You don't have to know everything about the topic when you write the abstract

You can buddy up with someone:

we can help with that! 😬

Activity

What was the most interesting thing? 🤔

Write it on a sticky note

Discuss the results

Keep it short!

Section:

Debunking myths ✓

Section:

Getting Started

Getting Started

Talk about your work or side projects

Topic that means something to you

Writing helps you clarify an idea

Good for testing an idea

Gives you credibility

Raise your profile

Value to your readers

Getting Started

Talk Types

to the wall

Code, tool, process, workflow?

Mistakes we made

Want to talk, but don't know what yet

Anyone seen one like this?

Activity ✨

What could you speak about?

Write a topic idea or two

We'll use one of them later

Getting Started

Picking the right event

Lunch and learn at work

Local meetups

conferences

Activity ✨

Where could you speak?

Write it on a sticky note

Go wide!

Discuss the results

cough CTFEDs cough

Writing a bio

Activity ✨

Write a bio

This is just the first draft

Write it, then revise it

Do tiny example of ourselves

Activity ✨

Pair up

Read your bio

Get feedback

Use the cards

Read, for practice

Stand up. Yes, it's silly. Yes, it helps.

Activity ✨

"Noice!"

thumbs up, high 1, high 5

Submitting a talk

Submitting a talk

Audience

Who will be there?

How will people decide to see your talk?

Say what you're going to discuss in detail.

Specify the audience.

Submitting a talk

The abstract

Fancy way of saying the blurb

Style, Structure

Hand out handout

Activity ✨

Write an abstract for your
(5m) lightning talk

Audience, Talk Type, Title, Description

Give out handouts

Examples? This meetup group, our poster list

First draft! Rough!

Activity ✨

Pair up

Read your abstract

Get feedback

Use the cards

Gonna go around the table and read

Practice speaking!

Stand up. Yes, it's silly. Yes, it helps.

Activity ✨

"Noice!"

thumbs up, high 1, high 5

Section:

Preparing a talk

Preparing a talk

Practice

Maybe the best bit of advice
3 big things

Practice

Your words

Knowing it gives you confidence,
room to improvise.

Practice

Your timing

We tend to run really short or really long

Practice

Again and again

A few times is probably enough

Activity ✨

Write a ⚡ lightning talk
On an index card to keep it short

About 5 minutes.

A little short is fine.

You already have your audience,
talk type, title, abstract

If you do slides, 1 or 2 plain ones is probably okay: not enough time for design today

Section:

Break!

Section:

Giving a talk

Activity ✨

Give your ⚡ lightning talk to your group

Get feedback

Use the cards

Groups of 4

It's only a first draft

Not gonna be perfect

But will give you some useful feedback, some new ideas

Stand up. Yes, it's silly. Yes, it helps.

Stop at 5m, whatever happens.

Activity ✨

"Noice!"

thumbs up, high 1, high 5

5Ws and 1H

Activity ✨

Workshop feedback

One thing you'll tell a friend about this workshop

stickies on the wall

Anonymous, please be honest!

Thanks!
